

Reclaim Your Radical Clarity:

Commit to What Matters, Realign Your Energy, and Lead with Confidence

Today's educators are being called to lead in classrooms, on teams, and within communities in ways that matter more than ever. In order to do this, clarity is crucial.

As you step into a year centered on commitment, the question is not just what you will do, but how you will show up while doing it.

Even strong, dedicated educators can find themselves operating on autopilot. Not because they lack commitment, but because they have been moving at a relentless pace without time to recalibrate. This is leadership drift.

It does not look like failure. It looks like commitment under strain:

- Communication starts to break down
- Decisions become reactive instead of intentional
- Engagement declines
- Energy fades, even among those who care deeply

Over time, this leads to burnout and impacts culture, connection, and student outcomes.

Leadership Drift to Radical Clarity is a practical, high impact keynote designed to help educators reset and recommit with intention in demanding environments.

Through real world insight, relatable storytelling, and actionable tools, Kristi introduces the Radical Clarity Compass as a simple, powerful way to realign, sustain energy, and avoid burnout.

Participants learn to recalibrate across four critical areas:

Voice: How you communicate and show up under pressure

Vision: What you are working toward each day

Values: How decisions are made when it matters most

Vitality: How you sustain energy without burning out

This is a practical reset, equipping educators with the tools, language, and clarity to lead with intention and sustain their energy throughout the year ahead. Because when educators lead with clarity, they show up with the confidence and purpose their students need most.
